

Privacy Statement

What information do we collect?

Full House collects information about the number of participants, their ages, gender and ethnicity as well as verbal and written feedback from both adults and children. For funding purposes (to prove we are reaching the right participants) we will collect addresses including postcodes. You can choose not to give us certain information.

Full House will collect the names, postal addresses and email addresses of our supporters for such purposes as to send out our e-newsletter (if chosen to receive this) to send out promotional material (both electronic and printed) about our projects and shows.

Who is collecting this information and how?

Full House staff will collect information through printed forms used at one of our shows or during one of our projects. We will enter the information into electronic databases which are stored securely in our company files located on CrashPlan. CrashPlan is data protection software for small businesses.

MailChimp

Full House uses MailChimp to collate the names, postal addresses and email addresses of our subscribers when they sign up to our newsletter via our sign up form on our website. MailChimp is an online marketing platform for small businesses. Click here for the Mail Chimp privacy policy.

Eventbrite

Full House uses Eventbrite to collect the names, postal addresses and email addresses of our audiences when they book to see a show or take part in a workshop. Eventbrite is an event management and ticketing website. Click here for the Eventbrite privacy policy.

Google Analytics

Our website uses Google Analytics (GA). GA uses cookies to collect information about how visitors use our site. The cookies collect information in an anonymous form that does not identify a visitor, including the number of visitors to the site, where visitors have come to the site from and the pages they visited. To opt out of being tracked by Google Analytics across all websites visit the Google site. Click here for an overview of privacy at Google

Why do we collect this information?

Full House uses CrashPlan to ensure the information we hold is safe and secure.

Through the Eventbrite platform we are able to issue tickets to shows and workshops as well as communicate with our audiences where necessary e.g. change of venue or show cancellation.

By using MailChimp we are able to send out our e-newsletter to all our wonderful supporters.

We use the information processed by Google Analytics to compile reports and to help us improve our website site, for example by making sure users are finding what they need easily.

How will this information be used and / or shared?

We will never sell your data and we promise to keep your details safe and secure.

As a registered charity we are able to deliver our brilliant projects only because we receive vital funding from a variety of trusts and foundations. When working with a funder to deliver a project we will only collect information about project participants which is necessary to the successful running of the project. Some of this information will be personal data such as name, address, age, ethnicity and gender. However we will not share full names, full addresses. Personal data will be made anonymous as much as possible e.g. not providing the names of participants or a full postal addresses only a postcode.

16 or under?

If you are aged 16 or under, please obtain your parent/guardian's permission before providing any personal information to Full House Theatre.
